

Statements from the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance about Fair Funding for Our Future

"There's a lot of things in here that both sides probably agree on to some extent. So I do think it's likely a fair part of this gets passed (in the Legislature)."

- Dale Knapp, research analyst, Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance, quoted in "Officials: Evers' school plan might help some districts," Appleton Post-Crescent, Nov. 17, 2010

"Distributing the money through the school aid formula, from a pure policy sense, is probably more equitable than distributing it in its current tax credit form," Berry said. "The money will tend to help districts that tend to be poorer or middle-of-the-road."

- Todd Berry, president, Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance, quoted in "State superintendent's funding plan would boost city schools," Wisconsin State Journal, Nov. 15, 2010.