

Child and Adult Care Food Program (CACFP) At-Risk Afterschool Meal Program Component Information Sheet

What is the At-Risk Afterschool Meal Program Component of the CACFP?

The at-risk afterschool meal component of the CACFP offers Federal funding to afterschool programs that serve a meal and/or snack to children in low-income areas. The Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act of 2010 (P.L. 111-296) expanded the availability for at-risk afterschool meals to all States.

USDA regulations define an afterschool program as one that provides nonresidential care to children afterschool through an approved afterschool program located in an eligible area. However, an emergency shelter may participate as an afterschool program without regard to its location.

Organizations currently operating the Summer Food Service Program (SFSP) are encouraged to participate in the at-risk afterschool meal component of the CACFP. Participation in both the SFSP and the at-risk afterschool component are encouraged to benefit both the organization and communities by providing year round services to children.

Who Benefits?

- School age children are eligible to participate through age 18. Teenagers who are 18 at the start of the school year are eligible until the end of that school year.
- Reimbursement may be claimed for individuals regardless of age who meet the definition of “Persons with disabilities.” Agencies must contact the Department of Public Instruction (DPI) for additional guidance regarding complying with the requirements for “Persons with disabilities”.
- Meals and/or snacks served to children who are part of school sports teams and clubs which are part of a broad, overarching educational or enrichment program offered by a school are eligible for reimbursement, but the program cannot be limited to a sports team.
- Children who do not participate in the offered educational or enrichment activities by the site but who attend the site and are served meals and/or snacks can be claimed for reimbursement.

The organization must operate an afterschool program which:

- Provides programs during after school hours, on weekends, holidays, and school vacations (e.g. spring break) during the regular school year, in an organized, structured, and supervised environment (afterschool meals and snacks can be served year-round through the CACFP if an at-risk site is located in the attendance area of a school operating on a year-round schedule);
- Provides educational or enrichment activities including programs focusing on homework, tutoring, supervised athletic activities, drama, and chess;
- Is located in a geographic area served by a school having a School Eligibility percentage of 50% or more based on the most recent Free/Reduced-priced September 2014 data or Community Eligibility Provision data; and
- Is open to all children and does not limit enrollment or membership on the basis of a child’s ability.
 - At-risk afterschool programs that are designed to meet the special needs of enrolled children, or programs with other limiting factors may be eligible to participate. Contact the DPI for more information.

At-risk afterschool programs may be operated by public, private nonprofit (Federal tax-exempt), and for-profit organizations that operate an eligible afterschool program and meet other applicable CACFP requirements.
