

John Smith

Business, Marketing, and Information Technology
State Superintendent Advisory Council

Instructor at University of Wisconsin-Whitewater

“Through the continuous passion, research, reflection, adaptability, and responsiveness of past and current faculty and staff to diverse education pedagogies and changing learning environments, graduates of our programs are ready for their BM&IT classrooms. Our students also know that they will be in demand, as immediate access to information will continue to proliferate. This is crucial for guiding future generations with the necessary skills for effective and strategic decision making in business, marketing, and information technology.”

