Hello Michelle,

I am writing to provide correction to data that will be released regarding the 2018 high school completion rate of students with disabilities who attended Sauk Prairie High School.

The rate that is currently indicated in WISEdash is shown to be 23.1%. As this is significantly lower than that which our records show, we examined the WISEdash data more closely. We discovered the following points that would need to be corrected:

- There are five students who are not listed in either the roster for all students who achieved high school completion or the roster for only students with disabilities who achieved high school completion;
- The full student roster, includes six students with disabilities who did achieve high school completion status, but are listed as students without disabilities.
- One student who is correctly identified as a student with disabilities but as not completing high school, did complete his high school program, but did so in an alternative program in a different state.
- Seven students completed met the high school completion requirements, but their IEP teams determined they should continue on with Sauk Prairie School District's 18-21 year old program.

Given these points, we estimate our graduation rate to be significantly higher than that which WISEdash will indicate. We ask for these errata to be noted.

Respectfully,

Noelle Sapiro, Ed.D.
