Note:

This list is in no way intended to be complete and exhaustive. Selected sources have been chosen to represent general diversity and equity areas or student characteristics protected by law.

In the future, the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction hopes to produce a compact disk that can contain a more complete list of resources. If you would like a product, catalogue, or website considered for the CD, please contact Beverley Helms at the department.

INTERESTED IN MORE COPIES OF
EDUCATING ALL OUR CHILDREN:
A RESOURCE AND PLANNING GUIDE?

A limited number of copies of Educating All Our Children were published in August, 1999, although the guide will not be available for general purchase in 1999. Initial copies will be used in workshops designed to train participants in how to use the process laid out in the guide. You can obtain free copies by planning a workshop with one or more of the guide's developers and submitting a request in writing to receive free copies.

In the future, the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction may develop an interactive CD that contains the information and process in the printed guide. Log on to the DPI webpage for updates (see below).
