What is English Language Arts Education?

Wisconsin's Guiding Principles for Teaching and Learning (Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction, 2010) provide important guidance for approaching the discipline of English language arts. Within the discipline, each of the six guiding principles has specific implications for equity, pedagogy, instruction, and assessment. English language arts educators should consider how the six guiding principles can influence their approach to the discipline.

Wisconsin's Standards for English Language Arts include four distinct areas: reading, writing, speaking and listening, and language. However, certain foundations of the discipline connect all standards across these four areas at a more conceptual level. To further connect the standards, and to make explicit the foundational underpinnings of the discipline of English language arts, Wisconsin has developed several broad emphases of English language arts to consider. They are:

- English language arts is an integrated discipline. Though the standards are separated into sections, the processes of reading, writing, speaking, listening, viewing, and representing happen in a connected way and are intended to be taught as such, in rich and authentic learning contexts.
- English language arts instruction builds an understanding of the human experience. The discipline of English language arts celebrates the richness and complexity of literature, drama, speech, and language while providing a window to the human experience. Through rigorous textual analysis and text creation, students grapple with moral, philosophical, and aesthetic facets of humanity, which inform, persuade, and narrate our lives and help us understand the experiences of others. These understandings ensure students graduate not only ready for college and career but also ready to be thinking and feeling world citizens.
- Literacy is an evolving concept, and becoming literate is a lifelong learning process. As society and technology change, so does literacy. Literacy evolves as widening perspectives change the way we read, write, speak, listen, view, and represent. Students begin the process of becoming literate long before entering a classroom, and continue this process in every classroom throughout their formal schooling, and long after formal schooling is completed. Literacy attainment, and especially early literacy attainment, is strengthened by responsive learning environments that include research-based core programs, strong intervention systems, and multiple ways of monitoring what learners know and are able to do. Knowing this, all educators must see themselves as both literacy teachers and literacy learners.
- Critical thinking and problem solving, communication, collaboration, and creativity are aspects of effective English language arts instruction and attributes desired for Wisconsin graduates. Wisconsin's commitment to ensuring 21st century skills are embedded aspects of English language arts is ongoing. This skill development strengthens English language arts instruction, and student mastery of these skills is important to Wisconsin’s conception of college and career readiness and to ensuring students access the discipline of English language arts in rich and meaningful ways.

- Literacy, language, and meaning are socially constructed and are enhanced by multiple perspectives. A rich diversity of texts, language uses, viewpoints, and critical discussions are important for building knowledge in Wisconsin English language arts classrooms. Exposure to different genres and text types and access to multiple and global perspectives provide a venue to explore and analyze the world.

English Language Arts Education in Wisconsin

Wisconsin’s Standards for English Language Arts provide a description, or portrait, of students who have met the standards in reading, writing, speaking, listening, and language.

These standards articulate end-of-grade level expectations. Some students - including students with disabilities, students with gifts and talents, and English language learners - may benefit from additional supports or challenges. Some barriers to learning and engagement can be minimized through Universal Design for Learning (UDL). In addition, learning can be personalized through collaboration between educators, school staff, families, and students.

Students in Wisconsin:

- Demonstrate independence. Students can, without significant scaffolding, comprehend and evaluate complex texts across a range of types and disciplines, and they can construct effective arguments and convey intricate or multifaceted information. Likewise, students are able independently to discern a speaker’s key points, request clarification, and ask relevant questions. Students build on others’ ideas, articulate their own ideas, and confirm they have been understood. Without prompting, they demonstrate command of standardized English to meet communicative goals and acquire and use a wide-ranging vocabulary. More broadly, students become self-directed learners, effectively seeking out and using resources to assist them, including teachers, peers, and print and digital reference materials.
- Build strong content knowledge. English language arts is its own discipline or content area; as such, it teaches students knowledge, skills, and behaviors unique to the discipline. This includes understanding and creating texts for a variety of audiences, tasks, and purposes. In addition, students learn to notice, appreciate, and use language in ways that exemplify the “art” of English language arts, including reading and creating works of fiction. Students, particularly in the early grades, also learn the mechanics of reading, writing, and language use (such as reading foundational skills, handwriting or typing, and basic grammar and conventions). As students progress through school, students apply these skills across disciplines to deepen understanding of subject matter (through reading, viewing, and listening) and to share what is learned (through writing and speaking).

- Respond to the varying demands of audience, task, purpose, and discipline. Students adapt their communication in relation to audience, task, purpose, and discipline. They set and adjust purposes for reading, writing, speaking, listening, and language use as warranted by the task. They appreciate nuances, such as how the composition of an audience should affect tone when speaking and how the connotations of words affect meaning.
- Comprehend as well as critique. Students are engaged and open-minded—but discerning—readers and listeners. They work diligently to understand precisely what an author or speaker is saying, but they also question an author’s or speaker’s assumptions and premises and assess the veracity of claims and the soundness of reasoning.
- Value evidence. Students cite specific evidence when offering an oral or written interpretation of a text. They use relevant evidence when supporting their own points in writing and speaking, making their reasoning clear to the reader or listener, and they constructively evaluate others’ use of evidence.
- Use technology and digital media strategically and capably. Students employ technology thoughtfully to enhance their reading, writing, speaking, listening, and language use. They tailor their searches online to acquire useful information efficiently, and they integrate what they learn using technology with what they learn in other ways. Students are familiar with the strengths and limitations of various technological tools and mediums and can select and use those best suited to their communication goals.
- Come to understand other perspectives and cultures. Students appreciate that the twenty-first century classroom and workplace are settings in which people from often widely divergent cultures representing diverse experiences and perspectives must learn and work together. Students actively seek to understand other perspectives and cultures through reading and listening. Students are able to communicate effectively with people of varied backgrounds and are able to explain their intentional language choices to achieve their communicative goals. They evaluate other points of view critically and constructively. Through reading great classic and contemporary works of literature representative of a variety of periods, cultures, and worldviews, students can meaningfully inhabit worlds and have experiences much different from their own.

Standards Structure

Wisconsin's Standards for English Language Arts include the following strands:

- Reading (including reading foundational skills, abbreviated "RF"), abbreviated "R"
- Writing, abbreviated "W"
- Speaking and Listening, abbreviated "SL"
- Language, abbreviated "L"

Each strand includes anchor standards, which express what college and career readiness looks like for a particular standard. Grade-level (kindergarten through grade 8) or grade-band (grades 9 - 10 and grades 11 - 12) state end-of-grade expectations and form a staircase to build toward the anchor standard.

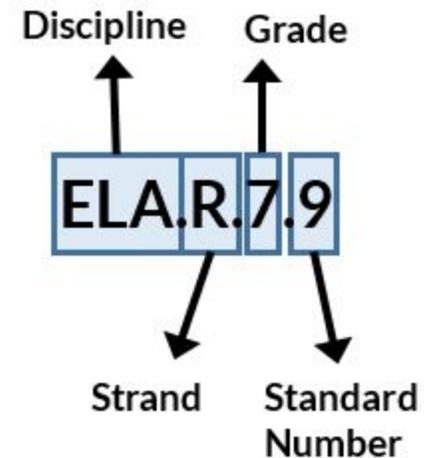

The standards are coded as follows:

Strand.Grade Level.Standard Number

For example:

R.7.9 R = Strand (reading) 7 = Grade-level 9 = Standard Number

Reading, Grade 7, Standard 9

Standards

Wisconsin's 2010 state standards, these draft revised standards, and research recognize that every student needs to comprehend text. To achieve this, all students need instruction in comprehension, writing, speaking, listening, and reading foundational skills, including explicit and systematic phonics instruction.

The following chart provides Wisconsin educators with a broad understanding of the major emphases in each strand of Wisconsin's Standards for English Language Arts.

These general emphases provide educators with a beginning point for critical conversations about the impact of Wisconsin's Standards for English Language Arts on curriculum, instruction, and assessment. The general emphases are intended to be used alongside the standards.

Wisconsin's Standards for English Language Arts provide schools/districts with opportunities to make local decisions about curriculum, materials, and assessment, including genres to read and write and specific texts to study. When examples are included, they are intended to be a brief list - not inclusive of all that could be learned.

Overall Structure of the Document:

Literate individuals adapt their communication in relation to audience, task, and purpose, making intentional choices about reading, writing, speaking, listening, and language based on audience and purpose. Learning experiences should be rigorous and varied in order to ensure students can apply all standards to a variety of texts, tasks, and contexts.

Efforts have been made in all strands of the standards to ensure the standards promote educational equity. Examples include:

- Use of the term “standardized English” as opposed to “standard English.” Different situations, audiences, and contexts call for different forms of language. What is considered “correct” or “standard” in a particular situation changes over time (Hudley, Anne H. Charity and Mallinson, Christine, 2011).

Reading

- There are nine reading standards; the majority apply to both literary and informational text (rather than separate standards for literary and informational text).
- Foundational reading skills are specifically defined (K - 5).
- Text complexity includes quantitative (numeric), qualitative, and reader and task considerations. Students develop independence in reading increasingly complex texts.

Writing

- There are nine writing standards; the first three standards focus on text types and purposes and emphasize writing for a broader audience.
- The production and distribution of writing strand focuses on the production of clear and coherent writing.
- The inquiry to build and present knowledge strand focuses on a more student driven inquiry process that supports analysis, reflection and inquiry.

Speaking and Listening

- There are five speaking and listening standards; three standards focus on listening and two focus on speaking.
- Emphasis is on communication appropriate to task, purpose, and situation, while being able to explain intentional language choices.

Language

- There are six language standards; one standard focuses on developing knowledge of language and how language functions differently depending on context; three standards focus on vocabulary acquisition and use; two standards focus on developing understanding of conventions of standardized English for contextually appropriate use.

Disciplinary Literacy

In Wisconsin, disciplinary literacy is defined as the confluence of content knowledge, experiences, and skills merged with the ability to read, write, listen, speak, think critically, and perform in a way that is meaningful within the context of a given field.

As a discipline, there are many contexts within English language arts requiring unique understanding and application of knowledge, skills, and experiences. Text is defined broadly as any communication involving language. Texts can be spoken, written, or visual (listened to, read, or viewed), highlighting the integrated nature of the discipline, often merging the ability to read, write, listen, speak, think critically, and perform in meaningful ways. With the help of English language arts educators, students must navigate the language and text practices in order to communicate effectively within the language arts.

Overarching Standard: Variety and flexibility in literacy

Wisconsin's 2010 standards for English language arts included a reading standard and a writing standard focused on range of reading and writing. Wisconsin's current standards for English language arts continue to emphasize the importance of variety and complexity of language experiences by including statements applicable to each strand of the standards focused on complexity but also the varying demands of audience, task, purpose, and discipline.

Overarching Standard:

Literate individuals are flexible; they respond to the varying demands of audience, task, purpose, and discipline.

Literate individuals adapt their communication in relation to audience, task, and purpose, making intentional choices about reading, writing, speaking, listening, and language based on audience and purpose. In addition, literate individuals read, write, speak, listen, and use language for enjoyment and self-exploration. The knowledge and skills developed through grade-level standards lead toward lifelong literacy, including the ability to meet the changing literacy demands of a contemporary, democratic society.

Reading Read and comprehend complex literary and informational texts independently and proficiently for many purposes (including enjoyment), including texts that reflect one's experiences and experiences of others.	Writing Write routinely for a range of culturally-sustaining and rhetorically authentic tasks, purposes, and audiences over extended time frames (time for inquiry, reflection, and revision) and shorter time frames.
Speaking and Listening Listen to understand and adapt speech to a variety of purposes, audiences, and situations in order to meet communicative goals, being able to explain intentional language choices.	Language Demonstrate an understanding of how language functions in different cultures and contexts. Apply this knowledge to comprehend more fully when reading and listening and to explain choices in language and convention use when composing, creating, and speaking.

The statements appearing above require learners engage with and create a wide variety of texts. Their experiences as readers, writers, speakers, listeners, and users of language should be wide and varied. In addition, consideration should be given to the complexity of texts and topics. Texts and topics are intentionally selected to develop content knowledge and provide challenges but also to serve as windows and mirrors (Johnson, N.J., Koss, M.D., and Martinex, M., 2017; Simms, Bishop, R., 1990) and engage all learners.

Anchor Standards for Reading

Read and comprehend complex literary and informational texts independently and proficiently for many purposes (including enjoyment), including texts that reflect one’s experiences and experiences of others.

Key Ideas and Details

Students will:

Anchor Standard R1:

Read closely to determine what the text says explicitly/implicitly and to make logical inferences from it; cite specific textual evidence when writing or speaking to support conclusions drawn from the text.

Anchor Standard R2:

Summarize key ideas and details in order to identify central ideas or themes of a text and analyze their development.

Anchor Standard R3:

Analyze how and why individuals, events, and ideas develop and interact over the course of a text.

Craft and Structure

Anchor Standard R4:

Interpret words and phrases as they are used in a text, including determining technical, connotative, and figurative meanings, and analyze how specific word choices shape meaning or tone.

Anchor Standard R5:

Analyze the structure of texts, including how specific sentences, paragraphs, and larger portions of the text (e.g., a section, chapter, scene, or stanza) relate to each other and the whole.

Anchor Standard R6:

Assess how point of view or purpose shapes the content and style of a text, drawing on a wide range of diverse texts.

Integration of Knowledge and Ideas

Anchor Standard R7:

Integrate and evaluate content presented in diverse media and formats.

Anchor Standard R8:

Delineate and evaluate the argument and specific claims in a text, including the validity of the reasoning as well as the relevance and sufficiency of the evidence.

Anchor Standard R9:

Analyze and evaluate texts using knowledge of literary forms, elements, and devices through a variety of lenses and perspectives.

R.9-10.5 In literary texts, consider how varied aspects of structure create meaning and affect the reader. (RL)

In informational texts, consider how author's intent influences particular sentences, paragraphs, or sections. (RI)

R.9-10.6 Analyze how authors employ point of view, perspective, and purpose to shape explicit and implicit messages (e.g., examine rhetorical strategies, literary elements and devices). Explain how an author's geographic location, identity, and culture affect perspective. (RI & RL)

Craft and Structure - Grades 11 - 12

R.11-12.4 Determine the meaning of words and phrases, including figurative and connotative meanings. Analyze the impact of specific word choices on meaning, tone, and mood, including words with multiple meanings. Analyze how an author uses and refines the meaning of technical or key term(s) over the course of a text. (RI&RL)

R.11-12.5 In literary texts, analyze how varied aspects of structure create meaning and affect the reader. (RL)

In informational texts, analyze the impact and evaluate the effect structure has on exposition or argument in terms of clarity, persuasive/rhetorical technique, and audience appeal. (RI)

R.11-12.6 Analyze how authors employ point of view, perspective, and purpose to shape explicit and implicit messages (e.g., persuasiveness, aesthetic quality, satire, sarcasm, irony, or understatement). Explain how an author's geographic location, identity, and culture affect perspective. (RI & RL)

Anchor Standards for Writing

Write routinely for a range of culturally-sustaining and rhetorically authentic tasks, purposes, and audiences over extended time frames (time for inquiry, reflection, and revision) and shorter time frames (a single sitting or a day or two).

Text Types and Purposes

Students will:

Anchor Standard W1:

Compose writing for a variety of purposes, focusing on reflective, formal, and creative writing which may happen simultaneously or independently.

Anchor Standard W2:

Compose writing for a variety of modes to self-assess, and to demonstrate facility with language, support and deepen understanding of self, relationships, and the world.

Anchor Standard W3:

Select and utilize tools and strategies to develop effective writing appropriate for purpose, mode and audience.

Production and Distribution of Writing

Anchor Standard W4:

Make intentional and informed decisions about development, organization and style, to produce clear and coherent writing appropriate for specific tasks, including but not limited to academic, creative, personal and reflective writing tasks.

Anchor Standard W5:

Plan, revise, and edit to make informed and intentional decisions to produce clear and coherent multimodal writing in which the development, organization and style are appropriate to task, purpose and audience.

Anchor Standard W6:

Use technology to produce and publish writing and to interact and collaborate with others.

Inquiry to Build and Present Knowledge

Anchor Standard W7:

Conduct short as well as more sustained student-driven inquiry, demonstrating an understanding of the subject under investigation.

Anchor Standard W8:

Gather relevant information from multiple print, digital, and community sources, assess the credibility and accuracy of each source, and follow a standard citation format.

Anchor Standard W9:

Draw evidence from literary or informational texts to support analysis, reflection, and inquiry.

Anchor Standards for Language

Demonstrate an understanding of how language functions in different cultures and contexts. Apply this knowledge to comprehend more fully when reading and listening and to explain choices in language and convention use when composing, creating, and speaking.

Knowledge of Language

Students Will:

Anchor Standard L1:

Apply knowledge of language to understand how language functions in different contexts, to make effective choices for meaning or style, and to comprehend more fully when reading or listening.

Vocabulary Acquisition and Use

Anchor Standard L2:

Determine or clarify the meaning of unknown and multiple-meaning words and phrases in grade-level reading and content; use context clues, analyze meaningful word parts, consult general and specialized reference materials, and apply word solving strategies (for meaning) as appropriate.

Anchor Standard L3:

Demonstrate an understanding of figurative language, word relationships, and nuances in word meanings.

Anchor Standard L4:

Demonstrate an ability to collaboratively and independently build vocabulary knowledge when encountering unknown words including cultural, general academic, and discipline-specific terms and phrases; use vocabulary appropriate to the context and situation.

Conventions of Standardized English

Anchor Standard L5:

Demonstrate contextually appropriate use of the conventions of standardized English grammar and usage when writing or speaking.

Anchor Standard L6:

Demonstrate contextually appropriate use of the conventions of standardized English capitalization, punctuation, and spelling when writing.
