Academic and Career Planning Meets Personal Finance
Gwen Janke, CESA; Amanda Langrehr, CESA;
Pat Rorabeck, Secure Futures; Kristen Ruhl, Secure Futures

Academic and Career Planning (ACP) helps students create and cultivate their own vision for post-secondary success through exploration, experience, and planning. An integral part of the ACP planning process is incorporating Financial Literacy awareness to give students a stronger understanding of the importance of being financially literate when making decisions affecting their personal lives and their finances. By developing curricula, projects, and assessments that lead to financial literacy, the effectiveness of ACP is expanded. Join us to learn about developing financial literacy lessons to build ACP awareness.
