Health Reimbursement and Health Savings Accounts

The following accounting guidance should address the various situations that districts have incurred with Health Reimbursement Accounts (HRAs) and Health Savings Accounts (HSAs).

These arrangements are typically provided to employees as part of a current health benefit plan or as a retirement benefit if certain conditions are met. Therefore, these transactions might be accounted for under Fund 73 (if the district’s Benefit Trust Fund includes them), as an irrevocable account in the District’s governmental funds for HRAs (10, 21, 27, 50, 80, 90s) or a direct expenditure to the district.

District contributions to HRAs are recorded as an expenditure when funded by the District into an irrevocable account. If no irrevocable account exists, only the exact medical costs should be recorded as an expenditure by the district. HSA accounts are employee owned and not reflected on the districts books after the expenditure to the HSA account.

Employee Benefit Trust Fund Transactions

1) Health Reimbursement Accounts and Health Savings Accounts established to fund the district’s Other Post Employment Benefit (OPEB) liability, as valued in the actuarial study. The amount for the Health Savings Accounts is for future payments to an HSA, not a payment to an HSA to be used currently.

   The district should record the contribution expenditure using object 218 in the governmental funds. Source 951 would be used in Fund 73. These benefits are included in a district’s actuarial study.

   b) Payment of retirement benefits.

      73E 420000-991     xxxx
      73B 711000        xxxx

2) Health Reimbursement Accounts established to the trust fund for the district’s Defined Contribution HRA plan for an employee’s future retirement.

   Defined Contribution Plans are where the annual contribution is specified and amounts are set aside into employee accounts. These contributions are not valued in the OPEB study as part of GASB 45. These contributions should be coded to the active employee functions and are eligible for categorical aid.

Irrevocable Account Transactions--HRAs

5) Health Reimbursement Accounts contributed to an irrevocable account to provide for employee’s current medical expenditures.

The district should record the contribution expenditure using object 249 and the employee’s current function and fund in the governmental funds. The district should also record the cash or investment account and the related liability account on the district’s general ledger. A special deposit account should be used to record the monies held in deposit for the HRAs in the irrevocable account. DPI recommends account 815200 in the general fund. No revenue is recorded for forfeitures. The forfeiture will reduce the amount of the contribution (expenditure) in the future year. This will never be recorded as revenue back to the district.

a) District’s contribution to the irrevocable account to fund the plan.

b) Monies held in deposit for plan participants for amounts not fully vested.

6) Health Reimbursement Accounts contributed into an irrevocable account to provide for an employee’s future retirement benefit.

The district should record the contribution expenditure using object 219 in the governmental funds.
