School libraries to share $35.5 million from Common School Fund

MADISON — Public school districts throughout the state will share $35.5 million in library aid, which will be paid April 27 from the Common School Fund, the only state funding specifically designated for the purchase of materials for school libraries.

Aid is based on the number of children between the ages of 4 and 20 living in each school district. This year's school library aid payment will be $29.06 (rounded) per child for 1,210,433 children counted in the 2013-14 school census. Funding is up $5.3 million from last year and the school census total is up as well by 11,244 children. The per child payment will increase about $4.11 per child from the 2013-14 school year. Districts must use Common School Fund library aid by June 30 for the purchase of print, digital and technology resources that are housed with the school library program and accessible to all students in the school.

“Library aid from the Common School Fund is a welcome source of state revenue to support student learning. Wisconsin's teacher librarians and the resources of our school libraries are integral in helping students develop the college and career ready skills they will need to succeed in the future,” said State Superintendent Tony Evers. “Allocations from the Common School Fund are the main, and sometimes only, funding available to purchase digital and print resources for the school library.”

The Common School Fund was established by Article X of the Wisconsin Constitution as a permanent school trust fund. The Board of Commissioners of Public Lands (BCPL) manages the Common School Fund and the State Trust Fund Loan Program. Board members are the Secretary of State, Attorney General, and State Treasurer. Tia Nelson serves as executive secretary to the board.
